Nobody can deny that this is one of the hardest times in American economic history. Millions are without work and have simply stopped trying to find a job after months of hopeless searching. Instead, many Americans are falling back on their own abilities to become economically self reliant. The reality of the unstable job market that exist today is forcing many people to look to themselves for ultimate responsibility for their own income. This has sparked a huge growth in home based business start ups that has many markets flooded with small home based service providers. This situation is the perfect breeding ground for the very thing that has set America apart for centuries, innovation.

Innovation is at the heart of a new home based business opportunity system researched and developed by The BBQ Cleaner LLC. The basic premise behind the system is there are many households equipped with high end BBQ grills that are heavily used and dirty. Most people don't have the time, equipment, or motivation to spend hours on the daunting task of cleaning the grill. Therefore, a huge demand should exist for a professional BBQ grill cleaning service. The idea is based on the age old rules of supply and demand and those are fairly reliable rules to follow. Market research and testing clearly shows that this untapped area of service is very much in demand even in a bad economy. "The fact is nobody is doing it and people need somebody to do it.", said BBQ Cleaner operations manager Jeff Krentzman. He goes on to say "we have done over two years of market testing and a thorough research of the numbers potential and there is no doubt, this is a tremendous home based business opportunity".

BBQ Cleaner provides individuals and business with exclusive, training, equipment, and marketing materials to start a professional BBQ cleaning service for an affordable investment. The actual cleaning system is based on a successful and proven system used in the U.K. Since 1994 called Ovenu. The Ovenu system provides professional results far beyond those typically achieved by grill owners who self clean. The fact that the system is not a franchise but a licensed individually owned business allows owners the flexibility to control their business as they see fit. BBQ Cleaner does not claim you will be a millionaire but you can make a decent living without long hours and the insecurity of traditional employment. Running a BBQ Cleaner business part time has shown incomes of up to $77,000.

What makes the BBQ Cleaning system unique is the fact that it is a relatively competition free market with a huge potential for frequent return business. Based on research information 77% of households have a BBQ grill and 45% of those use them at least 1-2 times per week during summer and a majority use them year round. Those kinds of numbers translates into a huge market for these services. The service is a perfect fit for existing businesses in related service sectors. Landscapers, lawn care providers, and similar businesses can add BBQ Cleaner to their list of services.

In a volatile and increasingly competitive economy BBQ Cleaner LLC demonstrates how opportunity still exist to live the American dream in the toughest economic climates. The affordability and proven success of the system makes owning your own home based business a realistic aspiration. Innovative thinking in finding a market with little or no competition brings new hope from an old source, good old American entrepreneurial know how.
